Yes.

It came from
the upper floor,
where the Circle is!

We're going

Yes, sir!

Armor of Albus, Activate

During the War of Independence, it was shown to be one of the greater artifacts.

I need to... get everyone away...

Well, humans don't document the Inuugi's history all that much, so it was forgotten...

Mr. Korb.

Ah, yes?

You said Dragon
Artifact Smuggling,
correct?

What was she thinking about?

Yes.

I saw it in Colonel Kanata's
memories.

It looks like
she's been helping
a merchant smuggle
Dragon Artifacts

It's not an uncommon practice
since it's legal under the law of the kingdom.

However, if you
get it across the border,
it can fetch a high price.

It could be worth investigating.

This kind of case
appeals to a professional black market, and they're easier than the military to deal with.

We should look for them in this area.

In this area?

If we're going here,

we should
cross the river
on a ship.

Every year, there's a time when the biggest black market trade takes place, along with a bunch of auctions.

It's in a city of
temptation and greed
called "laturang".

morning, either.

I'll contact him once
I reach Edorog.
